Albert Einstein

Albert Einstein was born on March 14, 1879 in Germany. Einstein has published hundreds of books and articles, though his first books were full of errors and delayed publication. He was awarded the Nobel Prize in physics in 1921. He failed the entrance exam to a polytechnic school in Switzerland because he did not have a high school diploma. After dropping out of school at the age of fifteen, he realized it was a mistake. He went back to finish his schooling. He is known throughout the world for being a genius scientist.

"A person who even made a mistake never tries anything new."

Rosa Parks

Rosa Parks was born on February 4, 1913 in Alabama. She earned her high school diploma but never finished Teachers College. Parks was a brave civil rights activist who refused to give up her seat on the bus. She was tired of being bullied and refused to give up her seat to a white man. She grew up during a time that it was legal to discriminate against black people. The bus driver called her a troublemaker and Parks was arrested. Her bravery and courage paved the way for civil rights and equality.

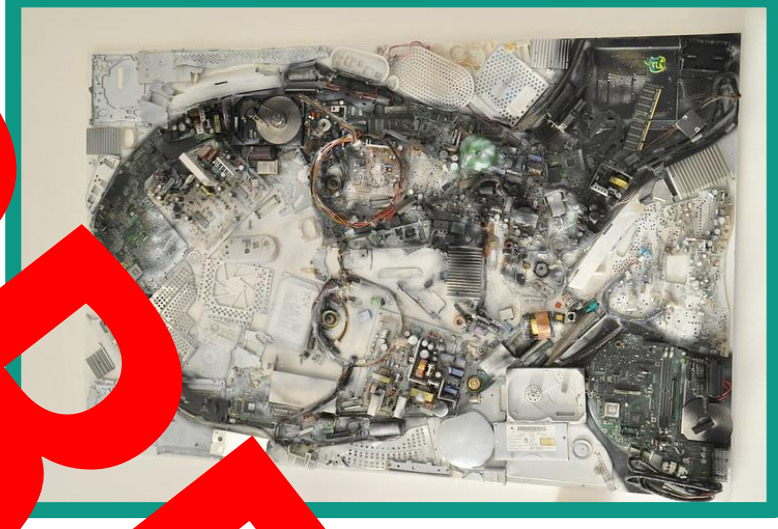

"I had an idea that my story was being made into a movie. I was just tired of being made to live up."

1955

Steve Jobs

Steve Jobs was born on February 24, 1955 in California. Jobs was the genius businessman who designed and built the first personal computer. Steve was the CEO of Apple which created the iPhone, iPad and iTunes. Steve dropped out of college to work on computers in his garage. Although he was a billionaire, he created several products that failed. He picked up and continued to create more, learning from his mistakes. His innovative products continue to change the world even today from his death in 2011.

"Sometimes when you're innovating, you make mistakes. It's best to admit them quickly and get on with improving your other innovations."
