The Revolutionary War was fought for the freedom of the colonies from Great Britain. At that time, the 13 Colonies in America were ruled by Britain and King George III.

Women played an important role during the American Revolution. Although most stayed home to care for their families, there were some women more involved in the war efforts.

During the Revolution, women took on the roles of nurses, spies, and soldiers. Nurses took care of the sick and the injured. Diseases spread rapidly, especially during the winters, so being a nurse was a dangerous job. Some women were spies for the Continental Army. Many generals and leaders would speak openly in front of women because they did not believe it mattered. There were even women who fought as soldiers. Although this wasn't allowed, they dressed up as men with fake names and fought alongside them.
