Alexander Graham Bell was a scientist, engineer, and inventor from Scotland, born in 1847. Bell is most known for inventing the first teleph[illegible]Others, including Antonio Meucci and E[illegible]ha G[illegible]y, [illegible]working with sound at the [illegible]e ti[illegible]. I[illegible]act, [illegible]ray [illegible]d Bell both filed for [illegible]tents on F[illegible]ruary [illegible], 18[illegible]. [illegible]'s in[illegible]ntion was [illegible]rans[illegible]tter. How[illegible]er, Bell was awa[illegible]ed [illegible]e first[illegible] for th[illegible] telephone. T[illegible]us, h[illegible]s co[illegible]dered the in[illegible]ntor of the telephone. Days [illegible] his patent [illegible]el[illegible] telephone worked using similar [illegible]ieces f[illegible] Gray's design.

Bell was primarily homeschooled. Because his mother was deaf, he and his father taught deaf people how to speak. Eventually, he worked for various deaf schools and even studied the human voice. He didn't have Graham for a middle name until he was ten years old. He requested the middle name to be like his brothers. His wife, who was also deaf, called him Alec, per his request.

Thomas Watson was an electrical designer. He and Bell studied acoustic telegr[illegible]y. At one point, Watson tried to react[illegible]ate [illegible]elephone transmitter. This acti[illegible]led B[illegible] to [illegible] that he could tra[illegible]ces[illegible]er a [illegible]e. His first wor[illegible] v[illegible] telepho[illegible]e, "Mr. Watson, com[illegible] her[illegible] I w[illegible] to see you." Thomas Watson heard [illegible]words.

It was interesting that Bell didn't [illegible] a telephone in his study (office). He thought it was too distracting. Another fun fact was what happened after Bell died. Every phone in North America went silent for a brief moment, out of respect for him.

Bell, along with some investors, created the Bell Telephone Company in 1877. Today that company is known as AT&T. By 1886, there were over 150,000 telephones in the US.
